Out What Was the Kitchen Window

Spearmint lifting itself into a bush that falls on the skirt of a Virginia Pine Grandfather planted in the first summer of his marriage, the July my mother was born. Only three are left, the remnants of diagonal rows that filled the field between home and forest. Nothing like his telephone line of Sweetgum down the drive, planted a few years later, my aunt's year, days of dollar-bags of loam, the feeling that anything he could plant would grow—all those trees are still there, even after my grandparents' house became my parents' house, then my aunt's house, trembled, and burned down.
